

Woman who fakes her rape in 'hot water'

Sunday, March 30, 2014

A woman who concocted a story about being abducted by three masked men and repeatedly raped after she went to spend the weekend with her lover without her foster mother's knowledge, was dragged before the Corporate Area Resident Magistrate's Court last week.

Tasha Harrison, 26, of Dumbarton in Kingston, was arrested and charged with creating public mischief on March 25, after she confessed to making up the fictitious tale, after the police detected inconsistencies in her story.

On Friday when she appeared in court, she pleaded guilty before Senior Magistrate Judith Pusey who requested a social enquiry report and remanded her in custody for sentencing on April 17.

The court heard that Harrison told the police that she was in Spanish Town, St Catherine, when three masked men drove up in a car and pulled her in the back seat. Harrison reportedly told the police that the men gagged her mouth, bound her hands and raped her repeatedly while driving around Spanish Town.

Harrison said that the men later left her on Spanish Town Road, following her ordeal.

According to the police, Harrison told them that she made up the story because she did not want her foster mom to put her out of the house, after she went to spend time with her lover.
