STOCKTON, Ala. -- A Baldwin County woman duct-taped her 2-year-old son and herself in an effort to make it look like her house had been burglarized and she had been raped, according to the Baldwin County Sheriff's Office. The woman later confessed that it was all a lie, and she was arrested, Sheriff's spokesman Maj. Anthony Lowery said.

The woman, identified as Tonya Yolanda McRae, 27, called for help Thursday morning.

She told deputies that someone broke into her Stockton home and raped her.

Lowery said several aspects of her statement led deputies to suspect that her story was untrue.

After a rape test came back negative, Lowery said, McRae admitted that she made the story up.

He said a motive for the whole thing was yet to be determined.

Lowery said McRae applied duct tape to her 2-year-old son and to herself as part of the ruse, and the county Department of Human Resources was assisting with the investigation.

McRae was charged with filing a false report, Lowery said, and was being held in the Baldwin County Corrections Center in lieu of $1,000 bail, according to jail records. Lowery said more charges may be filed against her.
