A WOMAN who allegedly feigned her own kidnapping and multiple rape, to cover up an affair, has been arrested in Malaga.

After a five month investigation, police reportedly discovered her claims were 'a hoax' to hide a relationship she was having with her neighbour.

According to reports, the detained told officers in June that she had been sitting at a bus stop in Malaga, when a car stopped next to her and four men got out and forced her to get into the car.

She said they then took her to an isolated area and raped her.

According to sources, investigators from the Unit of Family and Attention to the Woman (UFAM) of the National Police, later 'dismantled' this version of the facts.

And it was discovered that she had been with a neighbour, and wanted to 'hide that sexual contact from her partner'.
